May your love be upon us, O Lord, as we place all our hope in you.

Gospel Acclamation

Alleluia, Alleluia!
I am the Way, the Truth and the Life, says the Lord; no one can come to the Father except through me

Have you ever realised that somebody has completely misunderstood you and what matters to you? Perhaps a friend whom you've known for years takes you by surprise. The friend might say to you: "I know how ambitious you are, so you must be livid your colleague has been promoted," when you're not ambitious at all, and never wanted the top job and all its responsibilities. You're just delighted your colleague has had their talents recognised and will be shouldering that burden, and not you.

Jesus must have felt like that when his apostles James and John approached him and said that they wanted to share in his glory. After all this time together, Jesus might have thought, they don't get it: this isn't what I'm about at all. But when we realise someone has misunderstood us, we have options. We can keep silent and let the confusion continue, or we can try to explain ourselves. Out of a miscomprehension can come a deeper understanding. This is what Jesus chooses to do with James and John – explain further. In doing so, he enables us to know more fully what his mission and our own calling are.

Jesus starts his teaching here by telling James and John that there are matters that are not his to decide on. He takes this further when he speaks about his own role: this is not a glorious, all-powerful figure, despite being the Son of God, but a suffering servant, as prophesied by Isaiah, who will serve God's purpose by making the ultimate sacrifice – that of his life. He "offers his life in atonement", as Isaiah puts it or, as Mark's Gospel says, "as a ransom for many". It is in fulfilling the prophecy of Isaiah that Jesus is hinting at what is to come as well. For rather than having James and John on his right and left in glory, he will die on a cross with a thief on either side.

There is no fear in Jesus here, even though he has, in the verses that precede today's Gospel passage, foretold his own death. Mark says Jesus had been striding ahead of the disciples on the road to Jerusalem, suggesting a confidence and enthusiasm for the task ahead, while the disciples were both amazed and afraid. And it is then, as Jesus speaks of his own death and his rising again, that James and John tell him that they want to be with him in glory. They are getting ahead of themselves. For the Christian, the journey of life means not glory but serving others. That is Jesus' mission for himself and his followers, and it could not be more demanding. After all, Jesus tells James and John: "The cup that I must drink you shall drink" – something that hints at what is to come. For later, during his passion in the garden of Gethsemane, as Jesus grows aware of what torment is to come, he asks his Father: "If it is possible, let this cup pass me by." For those, including the apostles, called to follow Jesus unto death, they too will have to drink from that cup. Jesus will rise to glory, but first his mission must be accomplished and his disciples must also undertake that mission. Jesus' comment that it is not his choice who will be at his side suggests that someone else – God the Father – will allot those places. The Gospel offers an enormous challenge to Jesus' followers. Here we see God's own Son prepared to be not the one served but the one who serves and he urges the apostles to live their lives in the same way. The pagans, Jesus says, had rulers who lorded it over them. But Christianity is about a rethinking of leadership and the way everyone lives. It may seem hard, for putting others first may go against our survival instinct, but the Gospel offers hope too. The apostles went on to be inspired by the Holy Spirit and to spread the Good News, taking Jesus' message to heart. So they show us that ambition and pride can give way to self-giving and humility. We can all follow in the footsteps of the one who paid the ransom. We are set free by his perfect sacrifice to discover and develop all that is best of our humanity, for the greater glory of God. It is then that we can approach the throne of grace, as today's reading from Hebrews puts it.

Apostles` Creed

I believe in God, the Father Almighty, Creator of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only Son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, died and was buried;
He descended into hell; on the third day He rose again from the dead;
He ascended into heaven, and is seated at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from there He will come to judge the living and the dead.
I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Holy Catholic Church, the communion of Saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body, and life everlasting. Amen
